FALLS INTO CESS-POOL AND IS NEARLY DROWNED

Robert Akers, better known as "Bob" Akers, almost met death yesterday morning by drowning in a cess-pool. Mr. Akers, who is in the employ of the Ackerman dairy, as milk distributor, was making his usual call at the home of Arthur Lowe, on Third street, when the accident befell him.

On entering the yard in the rear of the Lowe home, Akers noticed a small hole about ten feet from the walk and upon being told that the cess-pool had caved in, went over to investigate how serious was the situation. He misjudged his distance and fell into the cess-pool and was gradually going down to the bottom, a distance of twelve feet, when he managed in some manner of good fortune to brace himself, and with the aid of Mrs. Lowe, who was too frightened to give very much assistance, he pulled himself out of the pool but not until he had gone down above his waist.

Akers is rather an elderly man and the exertion of getting himself out, together with the fright, was somewhat exhausting. However, he was able to continue with his route, after a garden hose had been used in cleaning his clothing temporarily.

No attention whatever was paid by the board of county commissioners to the petition recently filed by a few parties at Las Manillas, complaining that Juan P. Kavanagh, road supervisor in the first district, had been neglecting the duties of his position. Such is evidently not the case. The petition, which purported to have been signed by 200 persons, was in reality signed by only a few individuals who had been induced to attach their signatures and the names of others appeared who never saw nor heard of the petition. The whole proceeding was merely spite work and possibly was done for political or pecuniary effect.
